Dear Hiring Manager,
Simon Fraser University

Application for Project Coordinator Position

I am excited to apply for the Business Analyst position. With professional experience spanning construction operations and business analysis, I bring a structured, analytical approach to requirements gathering, process improvement, and stakeholder collaboration—capabilities essential for delivering effective business and technology solutions.

In my role as an Ironworker (Reinforcing) with A&H Steel, I regularly work with structural drawings, technical specifications, and multidisciplinary teams on major projects including the New St. Paul Hospital, Royal Columbia Hospital Expansion, Woodfibre LNG, and the PNE Amphitheatre. This experience has strengthened my ability to interpret complex documentation, identify discrepancies, and ensure alignment between design intent and execution. Operating in high-stakes project environments has enhanced my analytical thinking, attention to detail, and ability to translate technical information into actionable outcomes.

Previously, in my Business Analyst roles within banking and consulting environments, I supported stakeholders through requirements elicitation, documentation, issue tracking, and reporting activities. I facilitated communication between business units and technical teams, maintained project and requirements artifacts, and contributed to backlog refinement and change management processes to support informed decision-making and operational efficiency.

I am particularly drawn to this opportunity because it emphasizes analysis, collaboration, and continuous improvement—areas where I consistently add value. My combined field and analytical experience enable me to understand operational realities while delivering structured business insights that support organizational goals and solution effectiveness.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background and skills can contribute to your team's success.

Sincerely,
Kingsley Adequaye
